

A Lewis School Project: Theatre Express & Flying Squad

September 2013 – June 2014

English and Drama Camp combines the strengths of both the Flying Squad (expert language teachers and trainers) and Theatre Express (specialists in performing arts for English language learners). The two services now join forces, working in unison to create a memorable learning experience for students, but perhaps even more importantly a quality-orientated and action-packed learning environment that develops all the skills required to learn and practise a language successfully and expressively.

Each day of the course is divided into two parts. Our language experts deliver interactive lessons in class and then hand over to our performing arts specialists, who transform that language into practice – performance on stage. This course motivates and inspires language learners, while also working on other key skills. Our English and Drama camp takes students from classroom to stage, which they love!

We can accommodate groups of all sizes and there is no limit to the amount of projects or weeks that you can book. If you are interested in having a course package organised for your students, please review the fees and get in touch for a more precise quote. Every course is tailored so our price list is merely a guide.

Theatre Express

Established in 2010 by Lewis School of English, Theatre Express was created as an alternative method for improving language skills. By taking language learning out of the traditional classroom, students are refocused and engaged, and in turn flourish within this innovative method of learning.

Our projects enable students to develop their vocabulary, pronunciation, and delivery of English. They also improve their ability to express themselves, learn how to project their voices and develop their skills in verbal and nonverbal communication. Additionally our students enhance their performance techniques, with everyone becoming stars!

Each project we provide is tailor-made. We tune into your students' interests and passions while finding an opportunity for everyone to grow and develop within the project. Our ethos is that everyone has a part to play and we pride ourselves in finding that role, whether it is on or off the stage. Our team are all performing arts professionals with a wealth of knowledge in leading projects in drama, dance and music.

Theatre Express projects enable your students to grow and develop as performers, English speakers, and individuals.

Flying Squad

The Lewis School's newest service, Flying Squad started taking off towards the beginning of 2012. It has already delivered courses to students in Italy, Russia, Jordan and Turkey. The service brings tailored English courses to wherever the students are, whether they are at school, at university, or within an office environment.

The squad is made up of qualified and dynamic English teachers who are trained in using a variety of teaching methods, approaches, and equipped with strong resources. Students receive modern and eclectic approaches to language learning which take into account different learner styles and multiple intelligences.

Although classroom-based, the lessons are far from traditional, challenging students to be communicative, creative with language, and hard-working. Speaking and listening will be the primary focus to take full advantage of the presence of the native-speaker teacher, but writing and reading skills will also be developed. For every course tailor-made material is designed for the students and the content selected is based on your very specific learning objectives.

The Flying Squad enables students to learn effectively and with confidence. We engage, motivate, and deliver measurable quality and a memorable experience.
